

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mrs. Emilie Tourtelotte died Sunday morning at her home on Prospect street. Had she lived until today she would have been 99 years of age. Mrs. Tourtelotte was born on Christmas day, 1824, at Passaic, N. J., and came to Danielson about 30 years ago, making her home with her son, Cassius P. Tourtelotte. Until a year ago she enjoyed fine health and had a wonderfully clear mentality and marked originality of thought. Her health had been failing for a year and for the past week she had been critically ill.

Mrs. Ann Conway who would have been 99 in April died Saturday night at her home near Danville. She was a native of Ireland, the widow of Thomas Conway and lived the greater part of her life in this country, for the last 60 years in the home where she died. She leaves one son, John Conway, with whom she made her home. Mrs. John Doyle of Conway and Mrs. Charles Hanley of Pomfret are granddaughters of the deceased and Thomas Grimes of Pomfret is a grandson.

Sunday afternoon in his home in East Killingly funeral services for Thomas Robbins were conducted by Rev. E. A. Gallup, pastor of the Danielson Pentecostal church. During the service hymns were sung by Mrs. Andrew Potter and Walter T. Wood. Delegations from the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans and Moriah lodge of Masons were in attendance and at the Westfield cemetery burial services were conducted by Harry Brilly, master of the lodge. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Mr. Robbins died suddenly Friday night. He was born in Dudley 76 years ago, but had lived the greater part of his life in this town. He was a veteran of the Civil war in which he served as a member of the K. company, Connecticut Volunteers. He leaves no relatives nearer than his nephew, James Cullen at whose home he died.

Two girls each 13 years of age, were returned here Saturday night from Boston to which they paid a visit on Friday without informing their parents they were going away. One of the girls abstracted $40 from her father's board before leaving on the trip. They left here on a trolley at 6:10 Friday night and got a Boston train out of Putnam. Little difficulty was experienced in tracing their movements and a telephone message from the local police to the Boston police set agents of the Travelers' Aid Society on the lookout for them. They were located about midnight in Friday in the South Station out of which they had not ventured for several hours after their train landed there in Boston. The girls were brought back in an automobile sent to Boston for them.

Chief John McFarland had a telegram from the State Motor Vehicle Department reiterating that there will be no extension of time for running on 1923 motor vehicle markers and that on and after Monday next, drivers operating under the old plates will be subject to arrest and prosecution.

The telegram contains the request that the widest publicity be given this announcement. Warnings are also issued that it is not likely that registrations received after Dec. 23 can be filled prior to the first of the year on account of the work experienced. The department points out that the automobilists have had since Nov. 1 in which to register their machines and the department should not be held accountable for delays that may occur now, as thousands rush to register at the end of the year.

Sunday afternoon many took advantage of the postoffice being open an hour to secure Christmas mail and packages. The office force has practically cleaned up its work of the holiday period and this morning will have to deal only with the tail end of the rush. The usual Christmas mail service will be maintained today and throughout this territory rural carriers will cover their routes as on any ordinary day.

WESTMINSTER

There was no church worship at Westminster last week on account of the storm and the ice-covered roads. Very few were out.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marcotte are glad to hear that the latter is making a good recovery after her operation for appendicitis at Hartford hospital. She expects to be removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Benjamin, in East Hartford, soon.

Salve Olsen, now employed in Hartford, spent the week end at Longview, his home.

James Butler is spending a few days in New York.

The roast chicken community supper at the Moody home was well attended and proved very satisfactory. Some were present from Plainfield, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and Arthur Dunsenburgh furnished music, and Miss Lester, Westminister Hill teacher, acted as cashier. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Greene of Danielson sent regrets with costs for supper they did not have.

Schools in town closed Friday for the holidays, most having exercises and a Christmas tree.

Miss Dorothy Lester of Ledyard is visiting her sister, Miss Lucy Lester, at Rose cottage.

The church school is to have its Christmas doings and exercises Christmas night, Monday, and will welcome its friends at 7:30 o'clock.

PUTNAM

Nothing but a paltry $300 stands in the way of the young people of Putnam having a good sized and safe place to skate during the rest of the winter. If the city, town or public spirited citizens can see their way clear to raise this amount the ice rink will be assured.

Henry Keen who owns land through which flows the Little river, has offered its use free if someone will do the necessary work of flooding a piece of meadow land to form a pond. The plan is to build a small dam on Peter's brook, which flows into the Little river and to divert the water so that it will flow over the meadow and form a pond. While Adelard Melanson, employed in a Main street cigar and confectionery store was dealing out sodas and sundries he occasionally gave thought to a Brother Joe, whom he had not seen in eight years and whose whereabouts to him are unknown. The holiday season was on and Adelard's thoughts went back to the days when his brother and himself gathered with father, mother, brothers and sisters around the family hearth in Monkton and Amherst, New Brunswick.

At the same time just around the corner a musical comedy was staging its show afternoons and evenings. The prevailing center of such shows, the Hebrew and Irish comedians, were going through their antics to bring smiles from a good sized audience. Joe Burkhart, the Irish comedian, while off stage, was also thinking of parents, brothers and sisters in the New Brunswick city and wondering as to the whereabouts of a brother, Adelard, for Burkhart was only Joe's stage name. The right name being Melanson. And so the two brothers, not a block apart who had not seen each other in eight years performed their several duties.

A couple of showmen supporting the two comedians drifted into the cigar and confectionery store for some fags. Adelard waited on his customers and sensing that they were show people, he asked them if a couple of actors named Orth and Burkhart were still behind the footlights. He was informed that the pair were not teaming together any more. But the two actors said that the team was known to them and that Burkhart was playing in the same company with them just around the corner.

"You mean to tell me," said Adelard, "that Burkhart is still in the business?" "Yes," replied the actors. "He is with the show. Why do you ask?" The reply came quickly—"He is my brother and I have not seen him in eight years and I did not know where he was or whether he was alive or dead."

A few minutes later there was a small sized family reunion at the Main street store as brother grasped brother's hand and it was not until some time later that the two separated.

In Amherst and Monkton, New Brunswick the two brothers grew up together. Joe left his home town and went on the stage and has circled the country as a comedian. For eight years little has been heard directly from him. All of the week after the brothers came together they spent all of their spare hours with Joe and his family. The show closed in Putnam Saturday night they had perfected plans to visit the old folks. Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Melanson, whom neither had seen for nearly ten years, Adelard has lived in Putnam for about six years and his present employment is new to him but it was the means of finding his brother Joe and Joe's delight has been made by the pep and snap he has been putting into his work ever since the reunited brothers act was staged in the Main street store.

One of the prettiest, gayest and most elaborate Christmas observances ever seen in Putnam was that of the Manulac Manufacturing Company, which, through the superintendent, John P. Hanton, entertained its employees and children not over 14 years of age, on the top floor of Mill No. 2, Saturday evening.

The large room was banked on all sides with evergreen and the ceiling was canopied in panel effect in white and green. Red strands of crepe paper added a bright color effect and in the center glistered a large electric star. At the front of the room was built a large fireplace at the sides of which stood two large Christmas trees beautifully decorated. Four hundred power colored lights flooded the trees and transformed them into a glittering, sparkling mass. Another large star far up in the fireplace "chimney" gave the effect of a burning fire in the grate below. Hundreds of colored lights all about the room gave the effect of glittering stars. Nothing like the appearance of the whole had ever been seen here before.

It was amid this Christmas scene that upwards of 500 children were entertained by the superintendent on behalf of the company. There was an entertainment by twelve children and prizes were awarded for excellence in presentation. Santa Claus came down the chimney later in the evening and every child received a gift.

William Pfeiffer, overseer in the mill of the Nightingale-Morse Corporation mill, was presented an office chair, two boxes of cigars and a fountain pen by his employees. The overseers of the mill presented Superintendent Gardner a twenty dollar gold piece.

Middleman William F. Rafferty of the U. S. Navy Academy, Annapolis, is the holiday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rafferty, Grove street.

Michael J. Dalgle, employed in the state treasurer's office, and Mrs. Dalgle, are guests of Mr. Dalgle's mother in the north end of the city.

There were special Christmas programmes in all of the churches Sunday, with special music.

A man with a badly lacerated hand which had come in contact with a saw at some lumber camp was in the city Saturday afternoon to have it dressed.

He did not leave his name with the doctor.

Directors of the Putnam Country club have obtained an option to purchase the remainder of the Heath property, a part of which was bought some years ago for the original club. The tract consists of about nine acres and is contiguous to the club grounds. The plan will be presented at an early meeting of the club. The club membership is busy selling tickets in a scheme which it is hoped will result in a number of thousand dollars being raised for the club. The tract may be removed from its present fine property with possibly enough over to buy the desired additional tract.

The Arcadium club is now regularly installing its new home in the house on South Main street owned by the town. A partitioned was removed making room for the billiard and pool tables, the house has been newly wired with a porch light, lighting the entrance and a telephone installed. A membership list of considerable proportions has been placed on the bulletin board since the club moved to its new quarters and the outlook for the future is the brightest in years.

The Adams Manufacturing company of North Scituate, R. I., which recently became owners of a part of the factory buildings of the Nightingale-Morse Corporation of this city with a view to occupying them late next year are planning to begin the construction of an addition to their property early next spring. The addition will accommodate 300 looms. These will be new machines in addition to the 250 looms the company now operates. The mill is employing a great many of them and will be asked to come to Putnam with the concern. It is expected that the company will remove its plant to Putnam in the late summer or early fall of next year.

Santa Claus concluded his duties in Putnam Saturday evening after a strenuous week in which he answered hundreds of questions, recorded id his book names of varying gifts desired, and shook hands with hundreds of small admirers. The plan carried out under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce was most successful and the children had one whole joyous week following St. Nick up and down the street to their hearts content.

Putnam nearly had a costing fatality Saturday morning when the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Larose slid in front of an automobile owned by S. Kaminsky and driven by Rosario Lacroix. The driver tried to avoid hitting the little girl and nearly did. She was taken to the doctor's office where it was found that no bones and unless internal injuries develop she was apparently but slightly injured.

The Putnam police have received news from the state motor vehicle department that there will be no extension of time this year in registration and drivers are warned not to drive their cars unless they carry the new number plates. On behalf of his employees Edward J. McKenna of Wallingford, an overseer in the French River Textile Company, Mechanicville, was presented a fine sashophone. The presentation was made by Harry B. Smith, Mr. McKenna, of the high esteem in which he was held by those under his supervision. Mr. McKenna thanked the gathering for the gift and also for its co-operation in the department.

Following a service at his late home in Worcester a funeral service for Leroy Williams, formerly station agent at North Grovesend, who died in Worcester, Thursday, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. North Grovesend at half past one o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mr. Williams was born in North Grovesend and had lived there nearly all of his life. He is survived by his mother and two daughters.

Mrs. Esther Rouse, teacher at the Putnam High school, gave her pupils a Christmas tree Friday afternoon.

Dr. E. L. Simpson is at the Peter Bent Brigham Memorial hospital, Boston, for observation and treatment. He will return home in about a week.

Martin Hogan, overseer of the spinning department of the Manulac Manufacturing Co., was remembered by his employees Christmas. He was presented a gold watch chain, gold pencil and gold fountain pen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, Church street, were in Springfield for the holiday, guests of Dr. and Mrs. George W. Howard.

The employees in the weaving department of the Putnam Woolen company presented the overseer, John Canary, a gold piece and a box of cigars for Christmas.

John Brown, overseer of spinning, spoiling and winding for the Nightingale-Morse Corporation, was presented a shaving set, a gold fountain pen and a large box of chocolate by his employees as a token of their esteem and regard.

Stanton Ballard is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Ballard, South Main street.

Kenneth Andem is home from Boston Tech to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Andem, Grove street.

Floral Chimeras

There are orchids of the tropics which exceed in strangeness of form and splendor of color anything produced in conservatories. Among the most remarkable of these plants are those belonging to the genus masdevallia. One species closely imitates the trunk of an elephant and is named accordingly, masdevallia elephantopus. Another looks like a flying pigeon. The species to which the name "chimeras" is especially applied is very extraordinary. With what resembles two slender legs and a tail-like trunk upraised from its head, the flower stalks the beholder with its resemblance to a cat, a lizard and a monstrous insect. The resemblance of these flowers to animals are so exact that even

Interior China, with one doctor, to every 100,000 people, has been a land of widespread misery, due largely to ignorance and superstition.

Several local young men went to Vol. unknown to shoot with the rifle club and for beginners make very good records. The distance shot at was fifty yards, using 22 calibre rifles. It is expected that some of the members of the local club will go to Norwich Wednesday night and if enough go a match shoot with the Norwich Rifle club will be held. The Jewett City men's score was Francis Johnson 350, John Johnson 354, Earl Hickey 446, Dona Ballou 454, Charles Palmer 490.

Mr. Frank Spaulding of Brooklyn, Conn., and Miss Maud Gilbert of New London are guests at Mr. E. E. Gilbert's.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Commander Edward Hooker, a noted naval officer in the war between the states.

Greetings to Eva Booth, of the Salvation Army, on the occasion of her fifth birthday anniversary.

With several relatives and intimate friends as their guests, the President and Mrs. Harding plan to spend their second Christmas in the White House. The festival of Christmas will be observed in the customary manner at the White House today by the governor-general of Canada and Lady Byng.

The convention of the Workers' party of America, composed from last August because of the wholesale arrests of many leading members, has been called to meet in New York city today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Keith Vaudeville at the Broadway. For a holiday treat the management of the Broadway theatre has secured five excellent B. F. Keith vaudeville acts.

The headline attraction is Tunes and Steps, a musical and dance revue featuring Alice Isabelle, assisted by Lillian Isabelle and band. This excellent company consists of five people with a very beautiful setting.

Murray and Alma Ferguson are styled the comedy maniacs. They sing, talk, dance and tumble and give a full measure for laughter.

Bigelow & Clinton call themselves "Merry Makers to American Theatre-goers." From their work the public deal gives a great deal of enjoyment.

Collins & Hill present a novel variety act. They present a routine of singing, dancing and animal impersonations that will keep any audience hilariously happy for some time.

The Referee, a Selznick picture starring Conway Tearle, opens at the Broadway theatre today and it sure is a wallowing success. It gives the star a chance to prove that he is a fighter as bravely as Benny Leonard, as gracefully as Johnny Killeas and as tough as Jack Dempsey. Oh, what a batter that boy is!

Even the fairer sex helped with delight when Conway put half a dozen villains every into Shambles. And the boys who follow the prize fights and as if the thing were real instead of reel. All the thrill and furious anticipation of a genuine prize ring were there and then some. What a fight it was! And it won't be easily forgotten, by George.

Besides Mr. Tearle, the cast includes Gladys Hulette, well known here for her work in many picture successes, always interesting and as Randolph, Gus Platts, Laura Clarion and many well known others.

Norma Talmadge at the Strand Today. The Eternal Flame, a magnificent picture of love, Norma Talmadge, the most popular actress in the world, has yet graced with her beauty and charm, is the extraordinary First National attraction this week at the Strand theatre, where it opens its engagement today.

The story revolves about the petty jealousies, scandals and romances of the Court of Louis XVIII, with the beautiful duchess as the outstanding figure.

Miss Talmadge as the duchess reaches the heights of her wonderfully successful career, as the heartless court coquette, she is elusive; as the woman whose true love is doubted and forewarned she is a most magnetic, appealing figure.

General de Montreuil, masterfully portrayed by Conway Tearle, kidnaps the duchess, believing her professed love to be a motion picture masterpiece. An unusually well balanced cast of artists, in addition to Conway Tearle, is seen in support of Miss Talmadge.

Adolphe Jean Menjou gives a particularly fine characterization as the Duc de Liancourt, while Rosemary Trew makes an admirable Madame de Berri, Wedgewood Nowell is seen as Marquis de Rongoreilles, Kate Lester as Princess de Valmont-Chauray, homa Ricketts as Vidame de Paris, Irving Cummings as Count de Marway and Otis Harlan as Abbe Genard.

The production was personally directed by Frank Lloyd, and without doubt is his finest work.

An Educational comedy and Selznick News will conclude this gala holiday program. Don't fail to see it.

BREED THEATRE Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson again play a Jewish mother and father in another motion picture story—"The Good Provider," which delighted a large audience at the Breed theatre last night.

"The Good Provider," directed by Frank Borzage, will remain until next Thursday.

This new photoplay, created by Paramount Productions and released by Paramount, tells the story of a father who strives, always uncomplainingly, to bring happiness to his family. It makes clear how often the father is misunderstood, but as Mr. Borzage has directed it, Papa Borsavage's career is developed to the accompaniment of many hearty laughs.

Others in the splendid cast are: Miriam Batista, Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier, Jr. and John Roche.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathé News and an Educational comedy. Continuous show today from 1:30 to 10:15.

day evening which was much enjoyed by the audience. Thirty dollars was added to the fund to pay for the piano.
